

Research Contracts

5 – 8 March 2019

Burleigh Court, Loughborough

Outline programme (subject to change)

Registration will take place from 18.30-20.30 on Tuesday 5th March. The course will start at approximately 8.55 on Wednesday 6th March and the course will finish at approximately 14.00 on Friday 8th with a take away lunch.

Course content includes, but is not limited to:

- Basics of Contract Law
- Contract Structure and Boilerplate Clauses
- Charity Law
- Interpretation of Contracts
- Managing Risk: Liability in University Contracts
- Model Research Agreements
- IP in Research Contracts
- Various practical exercises and a Contracts Workshop
- Indemnities
- Negotiation

A buffet dinner with drinks will be provided on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, with Thursday being a free evening for delegates. There are plenty of opportunities to network throughout the course.

It's important that you're able to commit to attending the whole course, so please do take this into account when making your travel plans. The three days culminate in a highly participative team negotiation exercise at the end that brings together much of the learning from the programme and allows you to put your knowledge into practice, in a zero-risk environment. Feedback from previous attendees shows that this exercise is particularly valued, as it is consistently rated as one of the most useful elements of the whole course.

Please note that to be awarded the allocated 20 continuing education credits towards your application to become a Registered Technology Transfer Professional (RTTP) ALL sessions must be attended.

Course Directors: Daniel Blakey, University of Oxford and Paul Maclennan, Anderson Law LLP
